Mission Statement

All students will graduate from high school having the knowledge, skills, attitudes, and values necessary to achieve academically, prosper economically, and participate in democracy.

Superintendent's Highlights

The highlights listed below indicate the progress toward the reforms outlined in CCSD Superintendent Dwight D. Jones' A Look Ahead Phase I: Preliminary Reform Report and A Look Ahead Phase II: Progress Made and the Next Mile.

Raising the Bar - Phase I: Expectations will focus on preparing students so they are "ready by exit." Whether students enter the workforce or postsecondary education after high school, graduation should prepare them to succeed without any need for remediation. Phase II: An increase in the number of students that graduated from the Clark County School District in 2012 shows that "Ready By Exit" has become the rallying cry. District efforts were devoted to ensuring student success after high school including credit retrieval and the "Reclaim Your Future" Graduation Initiative.

Empowerment Schools - Phase I: Providing schools with relief from unnecessary oversight. To make this a reality, I am convening a Blue Ribbon Task Force on Empowerment to identify how to broaden the empowerment model so more schools benefit. Driving this is the conviction that greater flexibility comes in exchange for greater accountability for improved results. Phase II: The Board and superintendent adopted Blue Ribbon Task Force recommendations that extend empowerment. An advisory committee on empowerment took high-level recommendations from the Blue Ribbon Task Force and turned them into procedures which outline how schools can apply for increased flexibility based on the key ideas that empowerment is earned by schools that perform well, it is a way for schools to improve performance and over time, empowerment can become the operating system for the District.

Performance Zones - Phase I: In addition to restructuring several departments, the area service center structure was reorganized into a dozen or more performance zones that are each comprised of feeder aligned schools. This removes a bureaucratic layer, creates tighter focus, promotes a more nimble and responsive organization, and allows more targeted assistance. Phase II: The Clark County School District was reorganized into 13 Performance Zones that included a zone for Prime 6 schools. Zones were comprised of feeder-aligned schools. The restructuring tightened the educational focus and improved support for schools. Principals were surveyed in February of 2012, and overall 82.2% of principals responded. Results from the survey applauded the District for its direction, but also pointed to possible areas of improvement which included better coordination between operational and academic staff, greater clarity with respect to supervisor responsibilities and expectations, and improved internal communication.

Autonomous Zone - Phase I: Establish a single autonomous zone to provide a refuge for schools that are academically successful. Schools in this zone will enjoy greater latitude with respect to budgeting, staffing, and program design. Oversight will be minimal. Phase II: When the School Performance Framework was released, 5-Star schools were identified as candidates for the Autonomous Zone. These schools remained in their originally assigned performance zones but were granted greater autonomy with budgeting, staffing, and program design. This reinforced the effectiveness of the Performance Zone structure while acknowledging the need for more autonomy for successful schools.

New Schools Division - Phase I: Because Design a New Schools Division to expand innovative school models. These include empowerment schools, charter schools, and educational management organizations. Phase II: Efforts are underway in the 2012-2013 school year to design and launch an Office of School Reform and Innovation. Once in place, it will increase school choice options for students and families.

Turnaround Efforts - Phase I: Federal funds are already being used to restructure several schools to improve achievement. New efforts have been launched to prepare leaders for this challenge. We will build on and expand efforts in this direction. Other innovations that are envisioned include outsourcing management. Phase II: The first Turnaround Schools were Rancho High School and Kit Carson Elementary School. Both schools have made gains since being identified as Turnaround Schools in the 2009-2010 school year. At the close of the 2010-2011 school year, five new turnaround schools were identified. Two 1-Star schools, Two 2-Star schools, and one 3-Star school. These schools implemented significant changes in 2011-2012, including substantial restaffing. All five schools have made progress in student achievement and scores on state assessment show a 60% decrease in non-proficient students in math and science. At the close of the 2011-2012 school year, four new turnaround schools were identified. They are reorganizing and marshaling new resources to help lift student achievement. A Turnaround Zone was established to ensure these schools would receive more individualized support.

Growth Model - Phase I: By fall 2011, a system will exist to gauge how each student in Grades 3-8 progresses yearly. Data will be available, transparent, and understandable. It will help us identify pockets of excellence and take them to scale. Phase II: On August 15, 2011, a fully operational version of a Web-based interface called School View was launched on the Nevada Department of Education (NDE) website. It displays school-level views that are generated by the Nevada Growth Model for all schools in the state. On October 27, 2011, a fully operational enhancement of the Nevada Growth Model that made online individual student-level results available to licensed staff members was launched. In early 2012, the NDE submitted an application to the U.S. Department of Education seeking flexibility under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. The application restructures how schools are held accountable. The application puts results from the Nevada Growth Model at the center of a significantly restructured school accountability framework for public schools. Growth Model results form the basis of School Performance Framework that ranks all schools statewide and classifies according to their performance. On August 8, 2012 the U.S. Department of Education announced that it had approved the Nevada Department of Education application for flexibility.

4-Tier Teacher Evaluation - Phase I: A shift from the current binary system (that classifies teachers as either satisfactory or unsatisfactory) to a four-tiered system. The categories include highly effective, effective, minimally effective, and ineffective. An important future element of the shift is that the performance of students (i.e., academic growth) is considered during the process of teacher evaluation. Phase II: A statewide performance evaluation system for teachers and site-based administrators will be established no later than June 1, 2013. This system will evaluate educators using multiple, fair, timely, rigorous, and valid methods that include pupil achievement data to account for at least 50 percent of the evaluation. Educators will also be evaluated on use of practices and strategies to involve parents and families. Meaningful opportunities will be provided for educators to improve effectiveness through professional development linked to their evaluation. Educators will also be provided with the means to share effective educational methods with other teachers and administrators throughout the state. The growth model will be an important component in evaluating both teacher and principal performance. This new approach to teacher evaluation will be piloted in the Turnaround Zone during the 2012-2013 school year. During the 2012-2013 school year, the district will finalize the rubric for principal evaluation; finalize observation rubrics for teacher evaluation, pilot the use of the teacher evaluation tool in the Turnaround Zone schools and conduct a communication plan and outreach to ensure input from staff and the community.

Performance Framework - Phase I: The yearly academic growth of students will become the centerpiece of a school performance framework. The chief aim of this framework is to provide the kind of information that enables our staff to learn more easily from each other about what works. Ultimately, it will also provide a way to hold the district accountable for improved student performance. Phase II: In 2012 the Board adopted School Performance Frameworks (SPF) for elementary, middle and high schools. The SPF is based on results from state assessments in addition to other indicators including attendance data, the performance of English language learners and students on individualized education plans. The emphasis is on using results to learn how to get better faster and information from the SPF is being used to guide District resources and training for the schools most in need. The state of Nevada was granted flexibility under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. The application was made based on the Growth Model and a School Performance Framework. Once fully implemented, this will replace Adequate Yearly Progress.

Return on Investment - Phase I: Plans are underway to couple the growth information from a school performance framework with financial information in a way that shines a light on schools that make exceptional growth at low expense. Phase II: An information system is currently being developed that quantifies the return on investment by identifying where and how programs provide the greatest benefit to students. Additionally, the system will grow as education professionals connect areas of success. The system will identify high payoff schools and programs that are candidates for possible future funding. This system will provide a transparent way to fund programs that deliver proven student results.

Incentives - Phase I: The District will recognize, support, and learn from teachers who get better-than-expected results with students. To do that, we will invite them to create curricular tools that the District then loads into an existing and growing online library of support material. Because this library is accessible to other educators, it makes it possible for one teacher to learn from another highly-successful colleague. We will monetize this by providing a small royalty every time this happens thereby encouraging the healthy collaboration that can lead to improved results with students. These teacher-produced tools are part of an "open source" arrangement so they may be easily and freely shared with teachers in other districts and states. Phase II: To extend the reach of CCSD's most highly effective educators, the intent is to make additional performance-based pay and leadership opportunities available to them. The District, in conjunction with The New Teacher Project proposes a system that increases the number of students impacted by highest performing teachers by giving them opportunities in "extended-reach" career roles. The district will work closely with the Clark County Education Association as some components of the system may be subject to negotiations.

Human Capital - Phase I: All students deserve a great teacher and all schools a great leader. To that end, we are developing better ways to attract, select, develop, and retain the best educators. These efforts include career ladders and expanded pay for performance. Phase II: The District will focus on ensuring that the highest-need schools will have the earliest access to screened-in candidates. The employee Onboarding and Development Department has focused on ensuring the new teacher onboarding experience includes clear expectations for teachers. The employee Onboarding Department is in the process of redesigning the current mentoring model. In order to retain excellent teachers, the district will provide professional development opportunities to support the ability for teachers to grow in their practice.

Public/Private Partners - Phase I: Private funding is being used to support several studies. Two are complete. This includes one on barriers to achievement. The other is a communications analysis. Both yielded valuable insights. A third that is underway (a comprehensive analysis of District operations and spending) will be ready by September 2011. A number of other public-private partnerships exist that have benefited students and staff in various ways (e.g., by providing access to high-quality professional development for teachers and leaders). Phase II: A number of local community foundations have invested in key initiatives that will ultimately increase student achievement across southern Nevada. This includes the UCLA Dream Fund which supports the work of the Special Assistant to the Superintendent and the apprentice team staffed with Teach For America alumni. The Windsong Trust has also made an investment in five new prekindergarten programs for the 2012-2013 school year and a year-long partnership with the American Enterprise Institute. Additionally, they have enabled the District to create a two-year human resource partnership with The New Teacher Project.

2012 - 2013 District Accountability Summary Report

Technology - Phase I: Hybrid education that combines technology-assisted remote learning with more-traditional, face-to-face education has the potential to create more-engaged learning and transform how we think about class size. This is happening in a modest and limited way now. I am working to dramatically expand its use. Phase II: Blended learning is quickly garnering interest and favor across the District. The District is moving ahead with plans to make online and blended learning a reality for 100,000 students by 2015. An online/blended teacher certification program was developed in 2012. This will help reframe the student/teacher partnership by infusing the traditional classroom experience with blended components.

Literacy - Phase I: The District supports more professional development that equips teachers with better skills in this arena as well as better benchmark assessments to reliably gauge proficiency through the years. The District is taking steps to see that it acquires tools that are better aligned and which provide more real-time feedback to teachers, parents, and students. Phase II: Professional Development has been created with a focus on increasing teachers' understanding regarding the alignment of the Nevada Prekindergarten Standards and the Common Core State Standards to create a seamless prekindergarten through third grade system. Professional development has been aligned to The College Board SpringBoard program which is in place in 31 middle schools and three high schools. Content experts worked with students transitioning from fifth to sixth grade in the Summer Bridge program to prepare students in need of additional instructional assistance in English language arts. The District was also awarded with the Striving Readers Comprehensive Literacy Program Grant which is aligned with the CCSD Literacy Plan including site-based literacy coaches, job-embedded professional development, data-based decision making teams, and community partnerships.

Goals and Objectives

Data as of: End of school year

'-' indicates data not presented for groups fewer than 10. This data is suppressed due to FERPA regulations.

'N/A' indicates that this population was not present.

*** indicates that the data was not available.

District totals do not include state or district sponsored charter school data. (2008-Current)

Discipline and Transiency incidents are reported at the school where the action occurred.

**The purpose of some alternative programs is to enroll students for a short period of time until they can reenroll in a comprehensive school; therefore, transiency rates may be greater than 100% or N/A. Data reported as of the end of the school year.

Data as of: Count Day

'-' indicates data not presented for groups fewer than 10. This data is suppressed due to FERPA regulations.

'N/A' indicates that this population was not present.

** indicates that the data was not available.

District totals do not include state or district sponsored charter school data. (2008-Current)

Because of the changes in law (NAC 387.659) in 2009-2010 that affected the way credit deficient students are identified, results prior to this date and post this date cannot be compared.
